The longest feather in the back is a fluffy white Ostrich feather. I had never used one before but was told to put this in for it represents the graceful ballerina-type of dancer I saw when calling in your energy. It also signifies the design of the hats you wore in France when you were the wealthy owner of a Fragrance empire. Your mom and sister confirmed your love and knowledge of perfume in this lifetime and you can believe that all the knowledge is retained in our etheric body from past lifetimes. It just makes sense! The white feathers on top of that feather are Turkey feathers and usually are a symbol of abundance, and in your case, they are white to represent the feminine qualities you possess and the lightness you bring to the children you will teach/help in this lifetime.

There is a Peacock feather as the center piece and usually signifies royalty or "third eye" energy. It symbolizes the posterity you had in France for you were very wealthy and the psychic abilities you will possess in helping "special" children who are here to help and heal the earth.

The small white Swan feather at the base is representative of the gracefulness of your dancing and the link to "other worlds". Your abilities and wisdom with the special children comes from another dimension. There are a number of beautiful Bob White feathers in the base by the crystal with special markings on them. They symbolize those same special children you will be helping. Sometimes the "special" children are diagnosed with problems but really are very advanced souls and don't quite fit into the normal classes. They may be called "children with disabilities" but really are not. You will understand these children. (I hope you are working with and reading about Indigo/Crystal children.) The Bob White (quail) bird has the ability to spot danger and when it does, it will take off with a loud explosion scaring the predator. This explosive energy you will facilitate in the children that you work with...in other words you will trigger the abilities and healing that these children are here to give the world.

The suede ties have some soft white duck feathers and beautiful blue/green peacock (hummingbird) feathers in the ends. Duck feathers represent someone who can sail through problems and let things roll right off their back. I don't see much that can get you down. I believe that you take traumas in stride and keep going and...with a smile. You calm everyone else with your confidence and personality. There are tiny blue/green peacock feathers in the ties that are standing in for Hummingbird feathers (I don't have access to hummingbird feathers) which I was told was also a symbol of your special sense of smell for fragrance in France. "Hummingbird's have long bills and tongues that enable them to extract nectar from flowers", according to Ted Andrews, author of Animal-Speak. "In fact, they could not live without flowers, and many flowers could not live without pollination by the hummingbirds. (This is something you had a great sense of how to do in making the perfumes that you did in that time.) Hummingbirds have knowledge of how to use flowers for healing. This includes their fragrance, their color, and herbal qualities as well". I have put the intent for the Hummingbird energy in the peacock feathers, which they both have that iridescent color, and they will have the same feel.

There is a crystal in the base that I have programmed to bring you healing and blessings. I have cleared all human energies with sage and sweet grass so that this prayer feather comes to you with only the beautiful energy of the birds that donated their feathers.

I have enjoyed very much putting this prayer feather together for you with the help of my Guides, your Akashic Records, and the energy from your name. I hope you connect with it and use it with love. Aho!
